ABOUT RECITAL

A recital is a formal concert that usually features students who are currently studying in electronic keyboard, guitar or piano performance.

A student typically performs classical or contemporary pieces.

Recital is a formal concert, it is often required that the performers should be dressed in formal and that audience members dressed formally as well.

Recitals are a valuable tool for helping students to succeed in their instruments, because they establish a goal that gives students power and direction.

What would it be like if your child could walk up to the recital and play their best simply because they know they can?

Of course it would be wonderful!

So why not let them?

Having a successful recital is all about planning and perspective.

Students learn planning by setting goals that create a map to success that will achieves their musical dreams.

Following through with good habits that support their musical goals is how students can prepare to play well at their recital.
